

“Greetings. I just wanted to drop your office a short note of thanks for the rapid procurement of several articles which I requested yesterday. I am absolutely dumbfounded by the speed with which my requests were processed. I literally expected this process to take a minimum of several days, if not weeks, since some of the requested articles were from rather obscure journals. Imagine my surprise when I received, over the course of the day, almost all, if not all of the articles. Truth be told, I have not even had time myself to check! I am truly grateful to whomever it is in your office that found the time to locate these materials and to send me PDFs of them. And I am more generally thankful to have such an efficient office working on behalf of faculty and students.” - Faculty member in English Literature, University of Connecticut

“Here is an example of the multitude of notes we receive from our users, we can’t recommend Rapid enough!”
